

WHEN ROGER MET MICHAEL

Michael Mhangami was selected to be one of the mascots at the Barclays ATP World Tour Finals at the O2 Arena on Thursday 25th November 2010. Michael was lucky to be escorting his favourite player, and eventual winner, Roger Federer onto court for the match against Andy Murray.

During 2010 Michael won three national level titles as well as winning the Surrey County event. He is part of the Aegon Future Stars programme to nurture talented young tennis players. The trip was a great reward for all the hard work on his own game throughout the year. Michael lives in Peckham and has been training at Burgess Park with Southwark City Tennis Club since he was five.
